

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH DIRECT SERVICES TO SCHOOLS

25th Royal Greenwich Early Years Conference Creating Harmony: Hearing Our Children's Voices

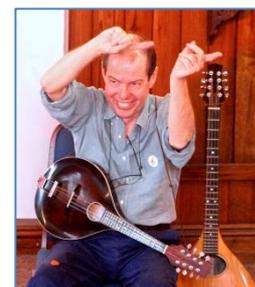

Target Audience: All Royal Greenwich nursery and primary schools, private, voluntary and independent settings and child minders.

Conference Description: Our conference this year considers the needs of children who speak English as an additional language as well as how children can use music to express themselves. With input from Dr. Rose Drury, Steve Grocott, The Royal Greenwich Music Hub and local practitioners, we will spend the day reflecting on how we hear the many voices in our settings.

Dr Rose Drury is an Early Years Education Consultant and Honorary Associate at The Open University. She has extensive experience of teaching and researching in multilingual early years settings in England. She is frequently asked to speak at conferences – as a keynote speaker and workshop leader - on supporting multilingualism in the early years because of her recognised expertise in the field and has published a book – ‘Young bilingual learners at home and at school’ (Trentham). She has also worked with parent groups in a variety of settings.

Stephen Grocott is a qualified teacher, professional musician and composer who specialises in music and storytelling in the Early Years and Key Stage 1. He is an Associate of the British Association for Early Childhood Education and has given courses for early years practitioners at The Institute of Education, The Childminders Association and The Centre for Literacy in Primary Education, who use his CDs in their own courses. He has worked with Pie Corbett on the Story Songs CD/ROM which is used in his Talk4Writing training.

Impact Statement: Participants will strengthen their understanding of how they can develop and support all children's learning in the EYFS through reflecting on their approaches and provision for all children.
